

Langley Parents as Partners in Learning Presents

Discipline that Doesn't Divide

According to Dr. Gordon Neufeld many of the prevailing discipline practices that parents use today prevent or erode healthy attachment with our children.

We will outline seven principles of discipline that promote attachment between the parent and child and that are developmentally appropriate. We can indeed help bring order to our children's behaviour without damaging the relationship. We will give practical suggestions and examples to show how to incorporate them into our daily lives with our children.
